

5.27

Wed
2026

18:30 OPEN 18:00
|
20:00

▷ <https://x.gd/DkakD>

Please register via the URL or QR code.

Registration deadline: May 24th, 24:00(JST)

Small auditorium, Hokkaido University Conference Hall / ZOOM

Free Admission

Pre-registration required

Hybrid format (in-person and online)

Consecutive interpretation provided

- ◆ Event details (including access details for online participants) will be sent to your registered email one day before the event.
- ◆ The latest registration will be used if multiple registrations are submitted.
- ◆ No late registrations will be accepted.
- ◆ No recording will be available after the event.
- ◆ No notice is required for cancellation.

Inala COOPER

Director, Murrup Barak Indigenous Student Centre

Kirsten HAUSIA

Program Manager, Murrup Barak Indigenous Student Centre

Hokkaido University, Center for Ainu and Indigenous Studies

Murrup Barak -

the importance of an Indigenous Student Centre at the University of Melbourne.

A "safe space" on university campuses refers to an environment both physical and psychological where students, particularly those from marginalized groups, can feel safe and comfortable without fear of discrimination or exclusion.

Such spaces are becoming increasingly important at our university, especially for ethnic and racial minorities, including the Indigenous Ainu people.

We are pleased to welcome two lecturers from the University of Melbourne, Australia, who will share their initiatives.

(For a detailed overview and speaker profiles, please visit the Center for Ainu and Indigenous Studies website.)

